

Karen M. Pavlicin

Author, Surviving Deployment: A guide for military families

Karen Pavlicin is an award-winning writer and dynamic national speaker known for her practicality, insight, and sense of humor. Her challenging yet positive experiences during her Marine husband's many deployments, and her volunteer work with military families, inspired her to write Surviving Deployment: A guide for military families and to lead family workshops.

She offers practical solutions to spouses, parents, and children as they face the reality of their stressed lives during a deployment. Her approachable style and real-world guidance, in her book and workshops, has encouraged families who needed an understanding smile, fresh ideas, and someone to cut the grass.

The loss of her husband, Bob, to cancer in 2003 has strengthened her resolve to bring hope and inspiration to others.

Karen was editor of Carolina Adventure, Camping Magazine, and Web Guide Magazine. She is coauthor of Online Style Guide: Terms, usage, and tips.

For additional information about the author, upcoming events, book reviews, or deployment tips for families, please visit www.survivingdeployment.com.

For author interviews or correspondence, please call 651-336-3043 or e-mail pavlicin@survivingdeployment.com.

Books are available at many retail locations and online bookstores, through Baker & Taylor wholesalers, or direct from the publisher: 651-357-8770, fax 501.641.0777, e-mail orders@elvaresa.com

ISBN 0965748367
Paperback 320 pages
$19.95 6" x 9"
Elva Resa Publishing LLC
April 2003